and Information

Victor Luckerson is a journalist and author based in Tulsa who works to bring neglected black history to light. He is a former staff writer at The Ringer and business reporter for Time magazine. His writing and research have appeared in The New Yorker, The New York Times, Wired and Smithsonian. He was nominated for a National Magazine Award for his reporting in Time on the 1923 Rosewood Massacre. He also manages an email newsletter about under-explored aspects of Black history called Run It Back. Luckerson's most recent accomplishment is the publication of his book "Built from the Fire" which blends journalism, academic research and oral history to tell the story of Tulsa's Greenwood District and the 1921 Tulsa Race Massacre.

Enjoy refreshments and networking after the talk. Reception ends at 7 p.m.

For those not participating in the photo walk, please meet for Happy Hour at the Hyatt bar or find small groups to explore the restaurants and bars within walking distance of the Hyatt.

Join us for the photo walk in downtown Lexington led by Liz Spencer, University of Kentucky assistant professor and 2014 Photojournalist of the Year, Missouri College Media Association. We invite you to take photos that reflect your interpretation and visualization of “belonging” as you walk through downtown Lexington. Participants will focus on the prompt of “belonging” and can use the VisitLex self-guided experiences to navigate through downtown and to learn more about Lexington history, art, culture, architecture and sense of place. Downtown landmarks and milestones include key locations of LGBTQ history, African American and Black history, and visually engaging murals and spaces. Everyone is welcome. This experience may particularly of interest to members of these divisions and interest groups: Visual Communication, History, Community Journalism, Newspapers and Online News, Broadcast and Mobile Journalism and the LGBTQ Interest Group. We will meet in the lobby of the Hyatt at 5 p.m. and head out in small groups, pairs or individually. You're welcome to walk with Liz or on your own. Please bring your own camera or device. Wear comfy shoes.

During and after the walk, please post your top 4-5 visualizations of “belonging” on Instagram, tagging @uk_ci and use the hashtag #AEJMCSE24photowalk . We will feature photos during the Saturday business meeting and on College and AEJMC related social accounts.
